FRED C. CHURCH'S CHRIS DUBLE NAMED POWER BROKER

For Immediate Release

Contact: Herman P. Laturneau, 978-322-7205

LOWELL – Chris Duble, Executive Vice President of Fred C. Church Insurance, was named a 2008 Power Broker by Risk & Insurance Magazine for his work with Educational Institutions. Each year in their February edition, Risk & Insurance publishes a special section entitled “Power Brokers”. This year, Agents and Brokers from across the country are recognized in 27 separate fields from Automotive to Workers Compensation. Risk & Insurance received 2500 nominations, and Chris was one of 151 Power Brokers chosen by a judging panel of Risk Managers and one of only six in the Education field. Winning brokers were selected for their creative risk solutions, industry expertise and client service.

Risk & Insurance is a monthly publication of LRP Corporate Publications, focused on emerging risks to businesses and presenting strategies to mitigate those risks.

Duble has been with Fred C. Church since 1986. He is a commercial insurance account executive and a corporate officer of the agency.

Herman P. Laturneau, President & CEO of Fred C. Church said, “I’m certain that Chris would make the analogy that the MVP is actually a team award. And so, with that certainty, I want to congratulate Chris and everyone at Fred C. Church who has contributed to make the Education Team an acknowledged force in the education marketplace.”

Fred C. Church, founded in 1865, is one of the largest privately owned, independent insurance agencies in New England. The company is headquartered in Lowell with offices in Andover, Chelmsford, Dracut, Haverhill, Littleton, Methuen, Tewksbury, and Westford, Massachusetts, and in Plaistow and Portsmouth, New Hampshire.
